Here are some tips to utilize the full power of Item Search:

Wildcards

Searches can be performed using the wildcards (?,) and double quotes (" "). Question mark (?) will match any one character. It cannot be used as the first character of a search. For example, women can be used to find woman or women. Asterisk () will match zero or more characters within a word or at the end of a word. A search for ch*ter would match charter, character, and chapter. A search for temp* will match all suffixes, such as temptation, temple and temporary. Use "double quotes" to search for a specific phrase, e.g., "caregiver support."

Boolean Operators

If you do not use AND, OR, NOT to separate your search terms, all terms combined with the AND operator. Below are additional tips for using Boolean operators: OR, NOT and AND must be written in ALL CAPS. To expand the results set, use the OR operator, e.g., army OR navy OR "air force" OR marines will return items that contain any of these terms. To exclude items, use the NOT operator or minus sign (-) before a term, e.g., animal NOT dog, will not include results with the term "dog". Note: This will also exclude any records that contains both the terms animal and dog. Use parentheses to change the order of how a search is processed, e.g., ptsd AND army OR military vs. ptsd AND (army OR military). The first search will return all articles discussing "ptsd and army", as well as any article with the term military.

In our example, we used the phrase "water market pilot program" enclosed in quotation marks to search for that exact phrase. A screenshot of our search results follows below.

The screenshot shows a web browser window with the URL fcgma.org/board-agendas-broadcasts-minutes/. The page title is "Board Agendas, Broadcasts, & Minutes". A search bar contains the text "water market pilot program" and a "Search" button. Below the search bar, there is a link for "Advanced Search +". The search results section shows "Search Results" for the text "water market pilot program" and the committee "Fox Canyon Groundwater Management Agency Board of ...". A link "Back to Upcoming and Archived Meetings" is also present. The results are displayed in a table with columns: Meeting Title, Date, Documents, and Options.
